

What is Dayspring Pre-Memory Care?

Dayspring pre-memory care is a fresh approach to support individuals experiencing beginning memory challenges. Dayspring residents are able to remain in their private apartments while they continue to participate in activities and socialize with peers in a traditional assisted living setting. Because of mild cognitive difficulties, Dayspring residents receive an enhanced level of support, encouragement and understanding from staff. Dayspring staff members are graduates of Eskaton's acclaimed Memory Care Academy, developed by Dr. Teri Tift, and are taught to recognize and support the unique needs of these individuals.

Dayspring is committed to:

- Encouraging connections with and among residents
- Engaging residents in activities designed to promote self-expression and overcome cognitive challenges
- Partnering with families; providing support and regular communication
- Providing an environment that is interactive and encourages resident engagement and participation
- Creating specific engagement opportunities based on residents' actual life histories and interests
